COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The Special Town Meeting will be held tonight. As there are several articles pertaining to zoning there should be a good turnout of voters.

The selectmen have an article to purchase a snow blower mainly for use picking up snow in the village. The loader is used for that purpose now and it is felt the new machine will more than pay for itself by the time element involved. A blower will handle snow much faster as they do not have to travel from the snow to the truck in the manner a loader does.

Vandals caused considerable expense by damaging the fountain on the Common Sunday morning. The complete fountain was tipped over and the pipe broken. An investigation is underway to apprehend those responsible. It is unfortunate people who witness these events feel they cannot testify for the police.

LOCKE MILLS HOME DAMAGED BY FIRE MONDAY AFTERNOON

A family of five was made homeless at Locke Mills early Monday afternoon by a fire which is believed to have started from defective wiring that caused damage amounting to several thousand dollars. Firemen of Greenwood and Bethel, fought the smoky blaze for an hour before bringing it under control. The building, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Smith, was insured.

An employee of the Oxford Paper Company at Rumford, Mr. Smith was home on his day off. Shortly after noon, accompanied by his son, Harold, he went to the house where he had been working. Mrs. Smith was at her work at the Elm Paper Company plant at the time the fire broke out. She was called to the house by her son, Harold, who was at work at the Oxford Paper Company and Rumford was at a nearby store at Locke Mills.

MEASLES VACCINE
SHOWS GOOD RESULTS

In its nine months of operation, the measles program of the Department of Health and Welfare has helped reduce measles incidence by 66.2 per cent, says Dean Fisher, M. D., Commissioner.

Noting that the year 1967 is the first in the usual two year epidemic period, only 233 cases have been reported as compared with an annual count of 2,049 in the 1965-66 epidemic period. From January to June this year 24,500 preschoolers have been immunized against measles and 29,500 school aged children.

MEAN-OLE MEASLES

However, Dr. Fisher emphasized, there are still some 40,000 children susceptible to this disease who have not been immunized. Most of the immunizations have been carried out through community and school clinics and in physicians' offices. The state provides the vaccine free of charge, but physicians may charge a service fee.

The state's objective, Dr. Fisher says, is to stamp out measles and every town is responsible for taking advantage of the opportunity to join this campaign. The highest incidence of measles this year is concentrated in the Penobscot Valley area, where there have been a few number of clinics. Parents can help by asking their municipal health officer to provide clinics and by taking their children to private physicians when the clinics are closed.

Plans for the coming year include reaching the 25,000 new born children Dr. Fisher says, as well as continuation of the

LABOR SECRETARY CALLS FOR LAW TO PROHIBIT AGE DISCRIMINATION

Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz has said that applicants over 55 are barred from half of all private job openings in urging legislation to prohibit age discrimination in employment.

Branding such discrimination as "inhuman," "indecent" and "unnecessary," Secretary Wirtz blamed age bias in employment on the failure of employers.

"To realize how technology and the life sciences have combined to increase the value of older people's work."

"Or to adjust welfare and pension fund planning and seniority provisions in collective bargaining agreements to the facts of life and of the increasing mobility of labor."

Available evidence generally shows, Mr. Wirtz said, that "the experience that older persons possess fully compensates for any loss of work capacity which might otherwise be varying degrees be occasioned by their age."

The Secretary declared that up to age 60 it now appears "there is very little diminution of a person's work productivity in most occupations."

Even after a person passes age 60, he added, "there is such a wide variety of productivity changes that age in itself is not a useful or reliable index of such change."

Mr. Wirtz, testifying before House General Labor Subcommittee in support of a bill to prohibit age discrimination in employment, gave this information on the job plight of older workers.

More than three-quarters of a million workers 45 years of age or older are looking for work today and can't find it.

More than a third of all men who have been unemployed 27 weeks or more—the hard-core unemployed—are over 45, although this group makes up less than a quarter of the work force.

More than half of the Nation's poor families are headed by persons 45 or over and more than a third by persons 55 or over.

The Labor Secretary noted that the bill under consideration would provide no relief for a man or woman between 45 and 65 who is unable to perform his or her job.

"It provides relief only when a qualified person who is ready and willing to work is unfairly denied or deprived of a job," Mr. Wirtz said.
